there seems to be no longer any doubt of the fact that Ireland is on the eve of a civil war. Most alarming demonstrations of public opinion ontinued to be made; and it was the general opinion that bloodshed was not far off.

The cause of quarrel between Ledru Rollin and is colleagues is said to have been as follows: A deputation came to Paris from Amieris, for the purpose presenting a petition for the removal of one of Ledra Rollin's commissaries, on account of some vioent proceedings he had indulged in the exercise of the unlimited powers with which he and his felbw-commissaries had been invested by M. Rollin. M. de Lamartine and several other members of the provisional gavernment are said to have admitted the misconduct of the commissary, and stated that he ought. M. Rollin refused to sacrifice a functionary who, if to blame at all, was only guilty of over zeal in the cause of the republic. Upon this, a violent scene asued, and words passed between the different members of the provisional government, which caused wide breach in the councils of the nation.

LATER FROM MEXICO.

The New Orleans Picayune of the 4th instant contains some important letters from its corresponent in Mexico. We quote as follows from one of these letters, dated Queretero, April 13, 1848:

Correspondence of the Standard:

Washington City, May 11, 1848. Gen. Houston's speech of Monday last is attracttion of the Senate the question of the propriety of despatching United States forces to Yucatan. He possesses a knowledge of the men and affairs of that State, of the Mexican Republic superior to that possessed by any other Senator and Representative, not excepting his own colleagues. While President of the Lone Star Republic he had much diplomatic intercourse with the Yncatan Government; for during most of the term of his Executive service the Yuca-tacoes maintained an attitude of at least nominal independence of Mexican authority. Time and again Yucatan Commissioners applied to the Government of Texas for a recognition of independence and an alliance offensive and defensive. Though President Houston aided them with advice and perhaps physical assistance, so far as by so doing he could forward the grand design of embarrassing and weakening the common enemy, he steadily refused the desired alliance. As before remarked, the insight which he has The Pacha of Egypt has hung a deputation from its absorbing interest. It is really fortunate for us resulted in the retreat of M. Guizot. During his ablarge meeting, who had been appointed to lay be that he is thus enabled to bring his experience to the aid of the Government of the United States in this novel and important, and it may be critical affair. I entertain no doubt of the eventual passage of the bill. The Hon. Mr. Botts, the terriffic Botts, as he is called of late, has returned to Washington from Richmond where, according to report, he went a week or so since to stir his friends, the Taylorites, up with a long pole; the result of the Virginia election having operated as a pretty effectual damper upon their spirits. I know not how far Mr. Botts may be disposed advancement of reform principles throughout the ingdom. Forty members of Parliament assisted at tands alone among the friends of Mr. Clay in Washington. For instead of reconciling staunch federal-ism to the proposition to play the "heads I win, tails you lose" game with him, staunch federalism, representing districts from every quarter of the Union apears more determined and hostile to his claims than before. So far as I can perceive, not a single "conscience"-man in Congress is disposed to yield to his demand. To say the least of it, the tender of his name to the Convention as a candidate for its support or nomination, with the cool assurance that if feat its nominec, is the most remarkable event in the history of American parties. The leaders of federalism have perpetrated many an act of stultification, but as yet they have not forgotten that their position. to be retained, requires some pride of character; and I am therefore of opinion that they will hardly submit to the General's dietum. Speculation upon the two last letters of Gen. Tavlor is bringing to light the origin of at least half the rumors referring to his declarations against which he complains, earnestly if not bitterly, in the letter of the 20th ultimo, to the Editors of the Richmond (Va.) Republican. It now appears that he wrote to Mr. Clay, the embodiment himself, assuring the latter that if nominated by the Whig Convention, that no man would give him (Mr. C.,) a more ardent sup-Brien, and Meaghers, the three most energetic of the port. This pledge was given in connection with protestations of indisposition to be run himself as a candidate and thus interfere with Mr. Clay's election. extraordinary demonstrations which can only occur equally as emphatic as the manifestations of disapin that capital. Fortunately it has passed off without one Mr. Tyler gave utterance. However, we do not M. Blane having been stung to madness by the publication of certain papers alleged to be found at M. Guizot's hotel, which impeached his political character, fulminated a most bitter phillipic against the provisional government—declared the documents pubther from the General to Mr. Clay will soon see the light. Indeed, it is even now probably on the way from Ashland to Washington, from whence it is expected to be made public. The existence of this letter proves that the General has a slippery memory. and forces the conclusion that having no fixed notions of civil public affairs, as be has declared in some twenty letters already published, he probably did make the remarks relative to the tariff of 1846. Rollin, Cabut Blangui, Albert Louis Blanc, Flocom, the sub-teasury, &c. attributed to him by gentlemen who certainly can have no metive to microscope the sub-teasury. who certainly can have no motive to misrepresent his conversation, and whose letters bear evidence of singleness and purity of purpose which, I am forced to write, are to be looked for in vain in the crooked path those almost invariably travel who seek the

> Our friends the Whigs are still in a peck of trouble about their approaching nomination. Gen. On the other hand, in the ear of "Conscience" there yet rings the stunning whiz of the palpable anti-Whig sentiments marking the letter written on the 20th ultimo. I may write you with safety that, taken together, these letters are here considered to have destroyed the slightest chance of nomination by the federal Convention previously remaining to the General. This is truly unfortunate for us, as the result of the Virginia election proves. In that the strength of no-party ism federalsm, its latest lisguise, was fully tested; as "Buena Vista, Palo Alto, Old Zack," &c., were substituted throughout the State for all rallying watchwords in which federalism delighted in the last general canvass. For two or three days past Mr. Senator Reverdy Johnson has essayed earnest efforts to work himself back into the confidence of federalism proper by trying his hand at the very common trick of abusing the President, whose delay in transmitting the nomi-nations of Generals Pillow and Cushing for the action of the Senate has furnished his nominal theme. However, he has taken a wide range—going over the history of the expunging resolutions, the veto of the log rolled river and harbor bill of last session, &c. The Constitution authorizes the Executive to select his own time during the session next tollowing the date of an appointment made during a recess. The resolution of inquiry proposed by Johnson therefore refers to a subject concerning which a Senatorial demand for information would be just as impertinent as the sending of an Executive message demanding to know how the Senate comes to delay action on mea-It is generally believed that Congress will meet sures earnestly recommended in a previous presidential communication. PIANO FORTES.

Raleigh, April 29, 1848.

THE continued success with which Gainer Riches, & Co., have met in the sale of their Piano Fortes, has induced them to enlarge their supply. They are now pleased to inform their friends and the public generally, that they have at present on hand, and intend keeping continually, different styles and patterns of both Rose wood and Mahogony, varying in prices from $210 to $500. They have supplied a great many orders from different sections of the country, and have received from purchasers at a distance (who bought their Pianos without first seeing them) voluntary letters of approval both as to price and quality.

They would also call attention to their large stock of books, fancy articles, and stationary, all of which they sell at publisher's and Northern prices. They have also a Book Bindery attached to their establishment in which every style of hinding is executed with durability and neatness. Blank work of every pattern will be made to order, music bound, e.c. Persons wanting any thing in their line will find it to their advantage to give them a trial, as they are determined to spare no pains in their efforts to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.
